

Box clever: The former shipping container transformed into a classroom

The school that contains itself

STUDENTS at Tower Hamlets College in Poplar are set to take their lessons in sea containers transformed into classrooms.

And last week the first major phase of this project took place when the sea containers were shipped into place on the Docklands Light Railway. Short of classrooms, the college was inspired by the Container City accommodation for artists at Trinity Buoy Wharf and asked Eric Reynolds of Urban Space Management, the firm responsible for the development, to carry out a similar project for the college.

NATALIE GOSLING